Abigail represents the financial services industry, creditors, and lenders with a humane and client-focused approach.

Abigail decided to become an attorney because she wanted to assist clients and the public in a deeper, more meaningful way. She is passionate about helping others achieve their business and personal goals. The challenging nature of legal work inspired her to study law.

Abigail helps clients with a large volume of delinquent consumer accounts accomplish their goals. Such clients benefit from a high-quality liaison between the company and consumers, who may be dealing with significant debt burdens. The three words that describe her best are intelligent, witty, and engaging. Abigail is involved with several charities including the Thirst Project and IRC.

Abigail is married and a mother to two beautiful children. In her spare time, she enjoys cheering on the Buckeyes, the Crew, the Blue Jackets, and the Clippers. Abigail is also an avid reader of novels and biographies, is a classic movie
