Three words to describe Tom and his collection efforts include - approachable, efficient, and resolute.

When Tom was in college, he had a professor who helped him to appreciate his abilities in writing and advocacy. With her help, he discovered that he could take these tools and become an attorney. Tom consistently strives to improve efficiency while maintaining a meticulous approach to the collections process.

His top clients include student loan creditors and insurance companies' subrogation departments. When they need help, Tom stays dedicated and determined to optimize every aspect of the process and recover for his clients.

In his spare time, Tom enjoys spending time with his fiancé and two dogs and staying active through strength training, running, and hiking – he also ran his first marathon in 2023! Tom thoroughly enjoys indie rock music, and his favorite band is Wilco.
