Shayna is an associate attorney in Weltman's Legal Collections group, where she represents creditors—including credit card and student loan lenders—in resolving unpaid accounts efficiently and effectively.

Before becoming an attorney, Shayna worked as a law clerk at a personal injury law firm where she supported the class action and mass tort litigation teams. Her experience managing a high volume of cases and maintaining open communication with clients helped prepare her to thrive in a fast-paced collections practice.

Known by her colleagues as knowledgeable, communicative, and outgoing, Shayna strives to differentiate herself through her ability to connect with clients and defendants alike—focusing on clear, friendly communication to reach practical resolutions. Originally from Northern Virginia, Shayna moved to Pittsburgh for law school and quickly fell in love with the city's energy and community. Outside of work, she enjoys traveling, exploring new restaurants with friends, and staying active.
