Client service is always at the heart of Sara's daily interactions.

Sara has been with the firm for over 25 years, and during this time she has served as practice chair of the firm's community banking, government collections, healthcare collections, landlord/tenant and utility collections groups. Originally joining the firm as a law clerk, Sara worked as an associate attorney for a few years before she was promoted to a shareholder in 2006. Since 2018, she has worked in the business development group, where she focuses on maintaining client relationships, as well as developing new ones both locally and nationally in scale.

Sara's goal is to provide timely and professional assistance to business owners, service providers, managers, directors, and other recovery professionals who struggle with managing their accounts receivable. She understands that her clients' days are long and demanding, so she aims to provide efficient, cost-effective solutions – for any type of claim.

Sara is a frequent lecturer on topics including reporting financial elder abuse/misappropriation, fraud and embezzlement in public office, various collection strategies, landlord-tenant law, and several federal regulations. She is also very active in a number of charities. Thanks to her annual fundraising efforts, the firm has received multiple recognitions. She also loves to travel and cook.
